BEENLEIGH

ARTISAN DISTILLERS

THE BEGINNINGS - 1884

In 1865, an English duo—John Davy and Francis Gooding—set foot on the fertile banks of the Albert River. With grand ambitions, they secured 300 acres of land and named it Beenleigh, as a tribute to their Devonshire homeland. The vision was clear: to cultivate cotton, weaving their fortune from the soil. But fate, as it so often does, had other plans.

As the warm Queensland sun bore down, the rich and abundant land proved better suited for fields of sugarcane, heralding the dawn of a new industry. Yet, the story of Beenleigh would take a spirited turn, shaped by the ingenuity of a rogue mariner.

In the twisting waterways of the Albert and Logan Rivers, a mysterious figure known as 'The Bosun' navigated the currents. James Stewart, as history recalls him, captained a vessel as infamous as its cargo—the S.S. Walrus, a floating sugar mill. Bosun Bill's ambitions stretched beyond refining cane, and with a copper pot still hidden below deck, he found a more intoxicating use for excess molasses, crafting illicit rum.

But in 1884, the legend took an unexpected turn when one morning the S.S. Walrus had run aground on the banks of where you now sit. The crew had vanished, but the ship's secret was laid bare. Sitting in the wreckage, gleaming like a relic of rebellion, was Bosun Bill's copper pot still.

Seizing opportunity, the Beenleigh brothers' story was reborn, the still in their hands and a legacy before them, the first drops of Beenleigh Rum flowed, marking the beginning of Australia's oldest operating distillery.

Now, 140+ years later, the legend lives on, one barrel at a time.
